Monster high coloring pages games

Instructables user PenfoldPlant gives a great step-by-step guide to turning photos into coloring book pages using Pixlr, a free online imaging webapp. The steps are pretty system-neutral and you should be able to figure how to follow the instructions using Photoshop, GIMP, and other image editors easily enough. Once you've mastered the basics of converting the photo to grayscale, inverting the photo, and applying a Gaussian blur, you can add in additional elements from other photos such as the example above that places a child in an island paradise with a treasure chest.If you're looking for inexpensive, yet thoughtful holiday gift for the children in your life consider creating a short coloring book using this method.How to Make a Coloring Book | Instructables Photo: Michelle WooThis summer, I've been looking for kid projects that have some mileage in them—stuff that can be worked on over the course of days or weeks. I landed on an activity that's easy, requires few supplies and makes me feel like a wizard: I blew up a coloring page.Specifically, I uploaded a coloring page file on Staples.com and had it enlarged as a 3-by-4-foot engineering print. These are the large black-and-white prints typically used for engineering or architectural plans. For about $7, we now have a mural on our wall, ready to be colored in by my 6-year-old daughter, or whoever else feels like picking up some crayons.The coloring page I chose is designed by PicCandle on Etsy. I wanted a print that had a good amount of detail, but not Where's Waldo-level intricacy. Last night, the kid started working on it, and then I jumped in at one point, too. Coloring really is relaxing. To make a supersized coloring page of your own, here's what to do:Choose a high-resolution coloring page. There are lots of free or low-cost PDF downloads online. If you have a very young child, you might choose a simple illustration, but for older kids with more patience, you can look into mandalas or other designs from adult coloring books. Create your engineering print. Staples, FedEx and Parabo all allow you to upload your design on their sites for printing. You can resize your print on your own with Preview or an online image resizer, or use the printer's "fit content to paper" option, if it has one. It's okay if there's some white space along the borders. Tape your massive coloring page on a wall or lay it across a table or the floor, and then let your kid go at it. It's a fun activity for play dates and parties, too. In the end, you have a giant work of art. Bored yet? Not to worry. Amid this pause in life as we know it, we'll continue to put together fun projects to work on from home. Our Boredom Busters include quizzes, connect-the-dots Corvettes, and even a constructible paper replica of the 760-horsepower Ford Mustang Shelby GT500. The latest additions, thanks to our friends at Meguiar's and Classic Industries, are even more cool pages for you to color. If you're into this type of stuff, you'll love what's going on from our friends at R&T Crew.We'd love to see what you've created at home. Send us the final iteration of your fancy handywork at: boredombusters@caranddriver.com or join Backfires.caranddriver.com. Printable coloring and activity pages are one way to keep the kids happy (or at least occupied) while Thanksgiving dinner is cooking. The websites listed below offer a variety of Thanksgiving or autumn-themed coloring and activity pages that can keep tiny hands busy. In some cases, kids can color the pages or complete the activities on a computer instead of on paper, if you prefer. Crayola When it comes to coloring, Crayola wrote the book. The company's website offers more than a dozen coloring and activity pages, including five Bingo boards, a match game, and more. You can print any of the pages, or you can color pages online using digital crayons, pencils, and markers. Besides coloring turkeys, people, and food, kids can draw faces, create Thanksgiving cards and place settings, and write Thanksgiving messages. They can also cut, color, and assemble a paper turkey. Activity Village This UK-based site offers Thanksgiving coloring pages, games, printables, puzzles, and mazes for kids of all ages. The coloring pages include Pilgrim and Native American boys and girls, Pilgrim ships, turkeys, and Thanksgiving dinner. The crafts pages show kids how to make paper cup Pilgrims and turkeys, handprint turkeys, a harvest basket, a salt dough apple wreath, and a Thanksgiving tree. The printable pages include drawing lessons, acrostic puzzles, mazes, word searches, word scrambles, stationery for writing notes and letters, and scrapbook paper designs. PaperToys.com PaperToys.com specializes in paper toys and models, some of which are fairly elaborate. It offers three Thanksgiving-themed cutouts: a Pilgrim, a turkey and chick, and a turkey. Two of the models are black and white, which isn't a huge deal, but they might be a bit more durable if you didn't need to color them with crayons, colored pencils, or markers. Still, it's a fun project and should keep kids busy for at least five minutes. Younger kids may need supervision with scissors and a little help with the cuts and folds. AllKidsNetwork If you do it right, you can sneak some educational worksheets in among the coloring pages and Bingo games. The AllKidsNetwork website has a collection of worksheets that are as fun as they are educational. For younger kids, the worksheets include counting practice, same/different, and word-picture matches. For older kids, the worksheets include word scrambles, word searches, missing letters, a Thanksgiving decoder puzzle, and addition and subtraction exercises. There are 22 worksheets in all. The printable pages on the Plimoth Plantation website feature some of the exhibits available at the Plimoth Plantation in Massachusetts. Several of the pictures feature Felix, the Mayflower kitten. While you're on the site, click the Talk Like a Pilgrim link in the Just for Kids section to learn what the Pilgrims called cats, skirts, and fireplaces, among other things. TheTeachersCorner.net There are more than two dozen Thanksgiving coloring pages to choose from on TheTeachersCorner.net. The images include pumpkins, turkeys, Pilgrims, ears of corn, and cornucopias. Most images also have a Thanksgiving greeting. The site includes a number of Thanksgiving-themed lined journal pages that kids can use to start or maintain a journal or write stories. You'll also find a printable guide to making a box to hold nuts or small candies, printable word search and word scramble puzzles, and printable activity cards. Super Teacher Worksheets The Super Teacher Worksheets website is full of activities that are educational and fun. With the mystery picture math worksheets, the goal is to solve the addition, subtraction, multiplication, or division problems, and then use the answers and the color key at the bottom of the page to color the turkey. There are three Thanksgiving-related spelling worksheets for second graders that challenge them to unscramble words and sort the words in alphabetical order. Plus, you'll find a Thanksgiving crossword puzzle, word search, and crypto-code riddle. There's also a Thanksgiving Bingo game and instructions for cutting out and assembling a Thanksgiving diorama. Kidzone Kidzone has a collection of printable Thanksgiving-themed math and word problem worksheets for kids in grades 1 through 5. The math problems cover the basics (addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division), as well as other concepts, such as carrying numbers, finding missing factors, working with decimals, and division with and without remainders. Each worksheet has a lighthearted illustration that lessens the stress of dealing with math, even if just a bit. You can create multiple versions of each worksheet by clicking the Generate New Worksheet link at the top of each worksheet page. The Kidzone website also has puzzles, coloring pages, and other printables for kids of all ages. Holiday Crafts and Creations Although Holiday Crafts and Creations only offers two coloring pages, we really liked the Quilted Banner page. It's different from anything we've seen on other websites. Better yet, one of the pages doesn't include a turkey. We have nothing against turkeys, but there are other ways to represent Thanksgiving and the fall season, and something unusual always catches our eye. Thanks for letting us know! Tell us why!
